Quranic font specimen

Same text, shown in each candidate font, so you can pick before we change the book. Every sample is rendered by the same engine the book uses (WeasyPrint) with the real font file embedded.

1. Two script traditions: pick one first

The font choice follows the kind of Arabic text you use. Madinah (Uthmani) text and IndoPak text spell some marks differently, and the fonts are drawn for one or the other. Same verse (Al-Fatihah 1:2), two traditions:

Uthmani / Madinah · KFGQPC Hafs

ٱلۡحَمۡدُ لِلَّهِ رَبِّ ٱلۡعَٰلَمِينَ ۝٢

IndoPak · Noorehira

اَلْحَمْدُ لِلّٰهِ رَبِّ الْعٰلَمِيْنَ ۝٢

> The text and the font must match. For example, the IndoPak font Noorehira has no glyph for Alif Wasla (U+0671), which Uthmani text uses constantly, so Uthmani text in it would break or fall back to another font. If your data is Uthmani, use an Uthmani font; if it is IndoPak, use an IndoPak font.

About: Its embedded agreement says it is free and may be distributed with or without applications. Lacks Alif Wasla (U+0671) and Arabic-Indic digits, so it cannot render Uthmani text. Its word spaces are very narrow (0.06 em), so the sample adds word-spacing; the builder would do the same.

About: No licence text in the font file, so permission is unclear. Also lacks the small high tah waqf mark (U+0615), which is omitted in the sample, and has narrow word spaces (extra word-spacing added). Its Extended Arabic-Indic digits (U+06F1...) are zero-width, so verse numbers use the plain Arabic-Indic set.

These need files I could not download in my sandbox. They are worth a look, and I can add them to this specimen if you download them and send them over.

Font	Script	What it is	Where to get it
KFGQPC Nastaleeq	IndoPak	The King Fahd Complex's official Indo-Pak edition typeface (Nastaleeq style)	Complex's fonts site, or Tarteel QUL (resource 462)
Indopak Nastaleeq	IndoPak	Unicode IndoPak font used on Quran.com / QuranWBW; has waqf lazmi marks (current v4.x)	Tarteel QUL (resource 242)
Digital Khatt (Indopak / V1 / V2)	Both	Variable contemporary-calligraphy Quran fonts	Digital Khatt project; check its licence
Me Quran	Uthmani	Madani-style font popular for designs; not the Complex's official font	Its licence reportedly restricts redistribution and modification

Ruled out

> KFGQPC Hafs Smart. The Complex's text data for this font stores one private-use character per word, so it only works with its own data files, not with Arabic you type or keep in Markdown/JSON. It would not fit your workflow.

How I would choose

> - Audience reads IndoPak mushafs (common in South Asia): use IndoPak text and an IndoPak font. Best long-term: KFGQPC Nastaleeq or the current Indopak Nastaleeq, once you have checked their terms. Noorehira is the only IndoPak sample here whose licence clearly allows redistribution.
> - Audience uses the Madinah mushaf: Amiri Quran or Scheherazade New are the safe, open-licence picks. KFGQPC Hafs is the most authentic look, but install it from the official source instead of bundling it.
> - You want both editions: keep two data files (Uthmani and IndoPak) and choose the font per edition. The book builder can switch fonts per file.

Samples at the same point size look different in weight and height because each font has its own proportions; IndoPak fonts usually need a slightly larger size. Tell me your pick and I will wire it into the builder with the right sizes. All Uthmani verse text in this specimen comes from the Complex's published Hafs data; the IndoPak sample text was typed for this specimen, so use a verified IndoPak text source (for example the QUL downloads) for real content.
